

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

DELIVERED TO CONGRESS ON MONDAY OF THIS WEEK.

Tribute to Army and Navy—Spirit of Nation—Paramount Duty to go to Peace Conference at Paris.

Gentlemen of the Congress:

The year that has elapsed since I last stood before you to fulfill my constitutional duty to give Congress from time to time information on the state of the Union has been so crowded with great events, great processes, and great results, that I cannot hope to give you an adequate picture of its transactions or of the far-reaching changes which have been wrought in the life of our nation and of the world. You have yourselves witnessed these things, as I have. It is too soon to assess them; and we who stand in the midst of them and are part of them are less qualified than men of another generation will be to say what they mean, or even what they have been. But some great outstanding facts are unmistakable, and constitute in a sense part of the public business with which it is our duty to deal. To state them is to set the stage for the legislative and executive action which must grow out of them, and which we have yet to shape and determine.

A year ago we had sent 145,198 men overseas. Since then we have sent 1,950,513, an average of 162,542 each month, the number, in fact, rising in May last to 245,951 in June to 278,850, in July to 307,482, and continuing to reach similar figures in August and September—in August 289,570, and in September 257,438. No such movement of troops ever took place before across 3,000 miles of sea, followed by adequate equipment and supplies, and carried safely through extraordinary dangers of attack—dangers which were alike strange and infinitely difficult to guard against. In all this movement only 758 men were lost by enemy attacks—630 of whom were upon a single English transport which was sunk near the Orkney Islands.

I need not tell you what lay back of this great movement of men and material. It is not invidious to say that back of it lay a supporting organization and of all its productive activities more complete, more thorough in method and effective in results, more spirited and unanimous in purpose and effort than any other great belligerent had ever been able to effect. We profited greatly by the experience of the nations which had already been engaged for nearly three years in the exigent and exacting business, their every resource and every executive proficiency taxed to the utmost. We were the pupils, but we learned quickly and acted with a promptness and readiness of everything else that we had that would serve the common cause. The details of such a story can never be fully written, but we carry them in our hearts, and thank God that we can say that we are the kinsmen of such.

Tribute to the Army and the Navy.

But it is not the physical scale and executive efficiency of preparation, supply, equipment, and dispatch that I would dwell upon, but the mettle and quality of the officers and men we sent over and of the sailors who kept the seas, and the spirit of the nation that stood behind them. No soldiers or sailors ever proved themselves more quickly ready for the test of battle or acquitted themselves with more splendid courage and achievement when put to the test. Those of us who played some part in directing the great processes by which the war was pushed irresistibly forward to the final triumph may now forget all that and delight our thoughts with the story of what our men did. Their officers understood the grim and exacting task they had undertaken and performed with audacity, efficiency and unhesitating courage that touch the story of convoy and battle with imperishable distinction at every turn, whether the enterprise were great or small—from the youngest Lieutenant, down to the youngest private, and their men were worthy of them—such men as hardly need to be commanded, and go to their terrible adventure blithely and with the quick intelligence of those who know just what it is they would accomplish. I am proud to be the fellow-countryman of men of such stuff and valor. These of us who stayed at home did our duty; the war could not have been won or the gallant men who fought it given their opportunity to win it otherwise, but for many a long day we shall think ourselves "accursed" if we were not there, and hold our manhood cheap while any speaks that "fought," with these at St. Mihiel or Thierri. The memory of those days of triumphant battle will go down to these fortunate men to their graves; and each will have his favorite memory. "Old men forget," yet all shall be forgot, but he'll remember with advantages what feats he did that day.

What we all thank God for with deepest gratitude is that our men went in force into the line of battle just at the critical moment when the whole fate of the world seemed to hang in the balance, and threw their fresh strength into the ranks of freedom in time to turn the whole tide and sweep of the fateful struggle—turn it once for all, so that thenceforth it was back, back for their enemies, all the way back, never again forward. At ter that it was only a scant four months before the commanders of the central Empires knew themselves beaten, and now their very empires are in liquidation.

The Spirit of the Nation Fine.

And throughout it all, how fine the spirit of the nation was, what unity of purpose, what untiring zeal, what elevation of purpose ran through all its splendid display of strength, its untiring accomplishment. I have said that those of us who stayed at home to do the work of organization and supply will always wish that we had been with the men whom we can never be ashamed. It has been an inspiring thing to be here in the midst of those men who had turned aside from every private interest of their own and devoted the whole of their trained capacity to the tasks that supplied the sinews of the whole great undertaking. The patriotism, the selflessness, the thoroughgoing devotion and distinguished capacity that marked the toilsome labors day after day, month after month, have made them fit mates and comrades of the men in the trenches and on the sea. And not the men here in Washington only. They have but directed the vast achievement. Throughout innumerable factories, upon innumerable farms, in the depths of coal mines and iron mines and copper mines, wherever the stuffs of industry were to be obtained and prepared, in the shipyards, on the railways, at the docks, on the sea, in every labor that was needed to sustain the battle lines, men have vied with each other to do their part, and do it well. They can look any man at arms in the face and say, we strove to win and gave the best that was in us to make our fleets and armies sure of the triumph.

And what shall we say of the women—of their instant intelligence, quickening every task that they touched; their capacity for organization and co-operation, which gave their action discipline and enhanced the effectiveness of everything they attempted; their aptitude at tasks to which they had never before set their hands; their utter self-sacrifice alike in what they did and in what they gave? Their contribution to the great result is beyond appraisal. They have added a new lustre to the annals of American womanhood.

The least tribute we can pay them is to make them the equals of men in political rights, as they have proved themselves their equals in every field of practical work they have entered, whether for themselves or for their country. These great days of completed achievements would be sadly marred were we to omit that act of justice. Besides the immense practical services they have rendered, the women of the country have been moving spirits in the systematic economies by which our people have voluntarily assisted to supply the suffering peoples of the world and the armies of every front with food and everything else that we had that would serve the common cause. The details of such a story can never be fully written, but we carry them in our hearts, and thank God that we can say that we are the kinsmen of such.

And now we are sure of the great triumph for which every sacrifice was made. It has come—come in its completeness, and with the pride and inspiration of these days of achievement quick within us, we turn to the tasks of peace again—a peace secure against the violence of irresponsible monarchs and ambitious military corporations, and made ready for a new order, for new foundations of justice and fair dealing.

The unrattled treaty with Columbia, public works for soldier labor, aid for Belgium and Northern France, and the railroad problem were treated by the President and in conclusion he reviewed:

Paramount Duty to go to Paris.

I welcome this occasion to announce to the Congress my purpose to join in Paris the representatives of the Governments with which we have been associated in the war against the Central Empires for the purpose of discussing with them the main features of the treaty of peace. I realize the great inconveniences that will attend my leaving the country, particularly at this time, but the conclusion that it was my paramount duty to go has been forced upon me by considerations which I have will seem as conclusive to you as they have seemed to me.

The allied Governments have accepted the bases of peace which I have outlined to the Congress on the 8th of January last, as the Central Empires also have, and very reasonably in interpretation and application, and it is highly desirable that I should give in order that the sincere desire of our Government to contribute without selfish purpose of any kind to settlements that will be of common benefit to all the nations concerned may be made fully manifest. The peace settlements which are now to be agreed upon are of transcendent importance, both to us and to the rest of the world, and I know of no business or interest which should take precedence to them. The gallant men of our armed forces on land and sea have conspicuously fought for the ideals which they knew to be the balance, and threw their fresh strength into the ranks of freedom in time to turn the whole tide and sweep of the fateful struggle—turn it once for all, so that thenceforth it was back, back for their enemies, all the way back, never again forward. At me lies, that no false or mistaken interpretation is put upon them, and to possible effort omit to realize them. It is now my duty to play my full part in making good what they offered their life's blood to obtain. I can think of no call to service which would transcend this.

I shall be in close touch with you and with affairs on this side of the water, and you will know all that I do. At my request the French and English Governments have absolutely removed the censorship of cable news which until within a fortnight they had maintained, and there is now no censorship whatever exercised at this end, except upon attempted trade communications with enemy countries. It has been necessary to keep an open wire constantly available between Paris and the Department of State, and another between France and the Department of War. In order that this might be done with the least possible interference with the other uses of the cables, I have temporarily taken over the control of both cables in order that they may be used as a single system. I did so at the advice of the most experienced cable officials, and I hope that the results will justify my hope that the news of the next few months may pass with the utmost freedom, and with the least possible delay from each side of the sea to the other.

May I now hope, gentlemen of the Congress, that in the delicate tasks I shall have to perform on the other side of the sea, in my efforts truly and faithfully to interpret the principles and purposes of the country we love, I may have the encouragement and the added strength of your united support? I realize the magnitude and difficulty of the duty I am undertaking. I am poignantly aware of its grave responsibilities. I am the servant of the nation. I can have no private thought or purpose of my own in performing such an errand. I go to give the best that is in me to the common settlements which I must now assist in arriving at in conference with the other working heads of the associated Governments. I shall count upon your friendly countenance and encouragement. I shall not be inaccessible. The cables and the wireless will render me available for any counsel or service you may desire of me, and I shall be happy in the thought that I am constantly in touch with the weighty matters of domestic policy with which we shall have to deal. I shall make my absence as brief as possible, and shall hope to return with the happy assurance that it has been possible to translate into action the great ideals for which America has striven.

U. S. Peace Delegates.

The Peace Delegates of the United States named by the President are: President Wilson. Robert Lansing, Secretary of State. Col. E. M. House. Henry White. General Tasker H. Bliss.

Teachers' Institute.

Teachers' Institute has been in progress this week, and has been a success notwithstanding the many difficulties presented by reason of the "flu" and changes thereby. Prof. Roth has been ill and confined to his home and was unable to be present. His condition is improving. Assistant Superintendent Shank has been in charge of the Institute. We hope to be able to give later a more extended account.

Flyers Leave.

LT. J. T. Morris and his friend LT. H. K. Searing after spending Thanksgiving at the former's home, left last Sunday about noon for Mineola, L. I., in the Curtis plane. They went on a course due east. The plane had a speed of 70 miles an hour, consumed 10 gallons of gasoline an hour and carried 25 gallons.

Red Cross Membership Drive.

A dollar will not buy two dozen eggs or two pounds of butter but it will buy a Red Cross membership. Mr. Davidson, head of the Red Cross, says there will be no further drives for war funds. The future of the Red Cross will be devoted to service, which can not receive less than the wholehearted and active support of the whole American people. Half of the dollar membership stays at home and works, the other half goes everywhere and works for humanity.

York Springs Fire.

Fire destroyed the barn of Gilbert Fair and the wood shed of Norman Criswell in York Springs on Wednesday night. The stream of flames over the town caused the town to ask help from Gettysburg and the auto engine was on way when stopped by the news that the fire was under control.

School Board Reorganized.

The School Board organized on Monday for the new year by electing Milton R. Remmel, President, and A. B. Plank, Vice President. Christmas vacations were fixed for three days, Dec. 25, 26 and 27, and no New Year holiday. If required to teach the full time required the schools will have to remain open until June 10.

BOY WRITES FROM FRONT

Telling of Things as They Are Seen and Seem to Him.

Dear Old Pal: Just to let you know that I at last have my wish gratified. I am at last in France. Wish you were here with me, also the Hummelbaughs, so you could all rave with me over the beauties of France. I mean over the beautiful madamoselles. There are sure some fine looking birds over here, only I can't say much for their plumage. Most of them are of the poorer class and dress poorly. However, some are pretty swell dames. I have learned to say about half a dozen words in French and don't think I care to learn any more if it is all as nutty as that. I am sure seeing things over here. Yesterday I went through a chateau, which was built during the age of feudalism. I suppose you remember of that age, being a veteran of some 1000 years of age. This chateau proper was built about 1500 A. D. while one tower and part of the wall and some of the other building were built about 900 A. D. It has never been sold but has been handed down from generation to generation and is now owned by a count who has two sons in the war or rather had two sons in the war, for one was killed during the battle of Verdun. There is a tomb in one of the rooms of the chateau proper in which the remains of a duchess is supposed to lie, who has been dead a couple of centuries. This is sure a pretty country only it rains so much here now, and that takes away a great deal of the pleasure of sightseeing. We had our first frost here this morning. There was ice frozen over the wagon ruts in some places. Oh boy, you should see the vineyards they have over here. There are certainly a "gang" of them and now is a very busy season for the people who own them for it is the wine making time and they are shipping it from the stations by the car-loads. They have tank cars almost like they use for oil or molasses in the States, only not quite as large. I can't say that I think much of the wine though for they use no sweetening at all and the "stuff" is sure sour. Well, I must close now as it is just about time to start home. We must be out of town till 9 P. M. Give all the fellows my best regards, and answer this real soon if you think at all of your old pal and friend. P.V.T. PAUL R. LENTZ. Co. E. 164th Infantry.

A. E. F. France.

P. S.—I have only seen one fellow I know over here and I saw him today. He came to our place last summer and belonged to the 60th Inf. He was wounded twice and came back to recuperate and has not yet rejoined his company or don't expect to anymore. He is out of luck. Well, so long again.

Crosses the Ocean Fourteen Times.

John Fissel, U. S. N., spent five days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Fissel, Baltimore street, leaving on Wednesday for Atlantic City where he will visit for several days before returning to duty. Mr. Fissel is a pharmacist on the U. S. S. Sabona which has been doing convoy duty since the opening of the war, and since his enlistment he has made seven complete trips to Europe and back and in all fourteen crossings and experienced only one encounter with a submarine.

Community Christmas Tree.

Plans are being made for community Christmas trees, several, and to go in the Square with a big celebration of cheer and good will.

Wounded at Front.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter C. Stock received word Thursday morning that their son, Paul E. Stock, had been seriously wounded in the fight near Sedan on Nov. 3. He is 24 years old and trained at Camp Lee, went to France in May and was in the battles of France in May and was in the battles of Flanders, St. Mihiel and Sedan. Oscar Keefer, of McSherrystown, jumped upon a rock and the noise caused the son to shoot in that direction, the sponge ball going through the right leg below the knee. He was taken to Dr. Woome's and later removed to his home by Dr. A. C. Rice. It is hoped to save the leg if blood poisoning can be prevented.

7 Democrats from Pa. Go to Congress

Where Democratic Congressmen succeeded in gaining slight margins over their Republican rivals in several districts, the State Republican leaders will not contest the election as the defeated candidates are unwilling to bear the financial burden which accompanies such contests.

As a result of this decision, there will be seven Pa. Democratic Congressmen in Congress at next session or in other words a loss of one member. It had been previously rumored in State political circles that several contests would be made in the districts where the Democrats had won by a small majority.

In the Tenth district Patrick Mc Lane, Democrat, defeated Congressman John R. Parr by a few votes; John J. Casey, the Democratic candidate in the Eleventh district, won over Edmund N. Carpenter by a small margin, and in the Sixteenth district Congressman John V. Leshar, a Democrat, defeated Albert W. Day by a few hundred votes.

Although the Democrats gained two seats in Congress, they lost three including Congressman Andrew R. Brodbeck, Twentieth district; Congressman Bruce F. Sterling, Twenty-third district, and Congressman Earl H. Reshlin, Twenty-eighth district. The Democratic Congressmen who were elected are: Arthur Dewalt, Thirteenth district; Henry J. Steele, Twenty-sixth district; M. Clyde Kelly, Thirteenth district, and Guy E. Campbell, Thirty-second district.

Message of Cardinal Mercier.

Cardinal Mercier, the most prominent Catholic in Belgium, made a prisoner for four days in 1914, talked with American newspaper men last week and among other things said: "You have saved the world."

"It is God's justice and the public conscience is satisfied. The triumph of justice is complete; the barbarian device that might is right has received its death blow; the dream of Pan-German domination has been shattered and evaporated like noxious gas in the wind, and thanks to God's justice, right has triumphed and the Belgians once more are free and independent. We have won the war."

"Your President is a great statesman, one of the greatest statesmen of all times. The Germans' dark plotting and treacherous diplomacy were completely foiled by President Wilson's magnificently honest and implacably just messages."

"We have not suffered in vain. This magnificent result is a great compensation and reward for all our sufferings. A new era is dawning upon the world: an era of freedom, liberty, and democracy. Never again shall the powers of autocracy precipitate the world in another such horrible conflict. The blood of our soldiers was not shed in vain. We have won and liberty has triumphed."

The London Times declares the presence of President Wilson at the Peace Table is indispensable.

"President Wilson," it says, "has done incalculable services to the allied cause. His name is one to conjure with in Europe. We are all idealists now in international affairs. We look to him to help us to realize these ideals and to reconstruct a better and fairer world."

"For this reason, and because he is the head of the American Republic, we hope that party controversies will not prevent him from coming to Europe. There may doubtless be difficulties surrounding his attendance, at the actual peace conference, but even more important than the actual conference are the discussions that must precede it, and in these President Wilson's presence not only is desirable, but is indispensable."

ORDERS FROM FOOD DEPT.

Potatoes by the Pound—Rye and Wheat May be Used for Feed.

Dr. E. H. Markley, Adams County Food Administrator, has received the following orders from the State Food Administrator Heinz. All dealers must quote prices on potatoes by the pound or hundred weight.

It is not intended to prohibit the sale of potatoes by the bushel, peck, quarter-peck or sack. These measures may still be used, but the dealer must tell the customer how many pounds they contain and how much he is selling potatoes at by the hundred weight.

A bushel of potatoes should weigh 60 pounds. This rule is to be strictly enforced among all dealers.

All restrictions on the use of rye or wheat for feed purposes are lifted, the new rule being effective at once.

"In view of the fact that many localities are badly in need of stock food for dairy herds and cattle we are authorized to give publicity to the fact that the rules restricting the use of wheat for other than human consumption have been repealed and also that millers may buy rye and mill it for feeding purposes without restrictions as to quantity, also that farmers may have rye milled for stock feed, whether it is of their own raising or purchased by purchase, without the approval of the county administrator."

Floyd Baker, 1054 1/2 St. of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker, residing at Group's Mill, near N. W. Chester, had a narrow escape from a serious burning accident on the 1st inst. The part of the week, the family was butchering and had two deer which rendered last close to a bunch. The lad later got onto the porch and noticed the can stopped into it. Fortunately the lad had caught the fire, though the boy's hair was singed and badly burned.

Curious Loan Clubs.

Loan clubs, which have hit the numerous small money lender very hard, have sometimes very peculiar rules. One that flourished recently in North London, England, had a rule compelling each member to borrow $5 every year, or in default pay a fine of $5. Loans required the security of two fellow-members, and the forfeiture of a member being refused a loan for want of security and fined for not borrowing the money.

U. S. HEALTH SERVICE ISSUES WARNING

Increase in All Respiratory Diseases After the Influenza Epidemic Probable.

Influenza Expected to Lurk for Months. How to Guard Against Pneumonia. Common Colds Highly Catching—Importance of Suitable Clothing—Could Save 100,000 Lives.

Washington, D. C.—With the subsidence of the epidemic of influenza the attention of health officers is directed to pneumonia, bronchitis and other diseases of the respiratory system which regularly cause a large number of deaths, especially during the winter season. According to Rupert Blue, Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, these diseases will be especially prevalent this winter unless the people are particularly careful to obey health instructions.

"The present epidemic," said Surgeon General Blue, "has taught by bitter experience how readily a condition beginning apparently as a slight cold may go on to pneumonia and death. Although the worst of the epidemic is over, there will continue to be a large number of scattered cases, many of them mild and unrecognized, which will be danger spots to be guarded against." The Surgeon General likened the present situation to that after a great fire, saying, "No fire chief who understands his business stops playing the hose on the charred debris as soon as the flames and visible fire have disappeared. On the contrary, he continues the water for hours and even days, for he knows that there is danger of the fire rekindling from smoldering embers."

"Then you fear another outbreak of influenza?" he was asked. "Not necessarily another large epidemic," said the Surgeon General, "but unless the people learn to realize the seriousness of the danger they will be compelled to pay a heavy death toll from pneumonia and other respiratory diseases."

Common Colds Highly Catching.

"It is encouraging to observe that people are beginning to learn that ordinary coughs and colds are highly catching and are spread from person to person by means of droplets of germ laden mucus. Such droplets are sprayed into the air when careless or ignorant people cough or sneeze without covering their mouth and nose. It is also good to know that people have learned something about the value of fresh air. In summer, when people are largely out of doors, the respiratory diseases (coughs, colds, pneumonia, etc.) are infrequent; in the fall, as people begin to remain indoors, the respiratory diseases increase; in the winter, when people are prone to stay in badly ventilated, overheated rooms, the respiratory diseases become very prevalent."

Suitable Clothing Important.

"Still another factor in the production of colds, pneumonia and other respiratory diseases is carelessness or ignorance of the people regarding suitable clothing during the seasons when the weather suddenly changes, sitting in warm rooms too heavily dressed or, what is even more common, especially among women, dressing so lightly that windows are kept closed in order to be comfortably warm. This is a very injurious practice."

Could Save 100,000 Lives.

"I believe we could easily save one hundred thousand lives annually in the United States if all the people would adopt the system of fresh air living followed, for example, in tuberculosis sanatoria. There is nothing mysterious about it—no specific medicine, no vaccine. The important thing is right living, good food and plenty of fresh air."

Droplet Infection Explained in Pictures.

"The Bureau of Public Health, Treasury Department, has just issued a striking poster drawn by Berryman, the well-known Washington cartoonist. The poster exemplifies the modern method of health education. A few years ago, under similar circumstances, the health authorities would have issued an official dry but scientifically accurate bulletin teaching the role of droplet infection in the spread of respiratory diseases. The only ones who would have understood the bulletin would have been those who already knew all about the subject. The man in the street, the plain citizen and the many millions who toil for their living would have had no time and no desire to wade through the technical phraseology."

COLDS, INFLUENZA, PNEUMONIA, AND TUBERCULOSIS ARE SPREAD THIS WAY

Copies of this poster can be obtained free of charge by writing to the Surgeon General, U. S. Public Health Service, Washington, D. C.

Baldness Conquered

RECIPE MAILED FREE

A veteran business man, who was almost completely bald and had tried numerous tonics, lotions, shampoos, etc., without benefit, came across, while on a journey, an Indians' recipe by which he grew a complete crop of healthy, luxuriant hair that he now possesses.

Others—men and women—have reported remarkable hair growth by the same method. Whoever wishes the recipe may obtain it free by writing to John Hart Brattain, BA-222, Station F, New York, N. Y. Or obtain a box of the ointment, Kotalko, made according to the perfected recipe, at the drug store, ready for use.

Indians' Secret of Hair Growth

In a vast number of cases, when hair falls out, the roots are not dead, but remain imbedded in the scalp, alive, like seeds or bulbs, needing only fertility. The usual alkaline shampoos, alcoholized hair tonics, etc., are of no avail in such cases. The Indians' ointment nourishes the hair and stimulates the growth.

Kotalko fortifies the scalp and induces hair growth in every case a possible wonderful result reported for men, women and children's hair. If you are bald, or losing hair, or have dandruff, you should try Kotalko. It is a pleasure to observe the starting of new hair and its steady increase until a prolific growth supervenes, thin hair or baldness. Cut out this notice; show to others who want beautiful hair. The recipe is free. This is genuine.

Extravagance Rebuked.

Two bachelors live together in a flat on East Nineteenth street. They kid themselves into thinking that they save rent and board and clothes and gain freedom and a lot of other things by so doing. But the collector comes to them the same as he does to married folk.

The other morning one of the bachelors awoke from a sound sleep and called to the other:

"What was that noise I heard?"

"A shot," replied the other, from the hall.

"What did you do?"

"I killed a bill collector."

"You extravagant pup! When powder costs as much as it does now, it does seem to me as if you might choke those fellows, even if it does take a little muscle!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Women Soldiers.

There were literally scores of women who served in the Northern and Southern armies. Since the war with Germany began more than one woman has been discovered in a soldier's uniform. One, at least, not almost to France before she was detected.

We men of America who, for whatever reasons, are not in the military service honor very greatly the Russian women who entered the army in the hope of inspiring the men of Russia. We beg to assure them that in case of desperate need the women of America would not hesitate to serve also in the war against the Hun. They have proved their valor in past wars.

Victoria Not a Suffragette.

Queen Victoria had neither sympathy with nor tolerance for the woman's movement, and on one occasion she expressed herself in very direct terms on the subject. "In 1874, G. W. E. Russell writes, 'a young woman, who bore a name highly honored in English history, suddenly became conspicuous on political platforms, and the spectacle of her performances produced this remarkable protest: "The queen is most anxious to enlist everyone who can speak or write to join in checking this mad, wicked folly of "women's rights," with all its attendant horrors, on which her poor, feeble sex is bent, forgetting every sense of womanly propriety. Lady ——— ought to get a good whipping. It is a subject that makes the queen so furious that she cannot contain herself."

Country Caudle.

Farmer Turmut had had a good day at market. His cattle had fetched good prices, and, feeling flush, he bought a nice piece of cloth to have made into a suit of clothes.

But, alas! on his homeward way he lost it, a happening which annoyed Mrs. Turmut very much.

Full of the grievance, she told the vicar about it next day, blaming her husband's carelessness for the loss.

A week later the vicar met Turmut.

"Good morning, Mr. Turmut," said the good man. "Have you heard anything about your cloth?"

Turmut smiled sadly.

"Yes," he said, solemnly and mournfully, yet philosophically, "I have—morning, noon and night!"

The Way Out.

"Martha," said Parson Hurdly to his wife, "I'm disturbed about old Brother Grabbitt's funeral. As you know there isn't a good thing that I can truthfully say about him, and I am quite averse to any hypocritical eulogy, even at a ceremony of this kind."

"Well, Theophilus," suggested his wife, "can't you get around it by saying that a more deserving person has not died in this town for years?"

"WOBBY AND WEGGY" WEGGY WINS AN EASTER BET

Interesting Engagement

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright, 1913, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Maj. Cecil Spencer, V. C., did not own his morning paper until his nurse had left the room and closed the door behind her. He disheveled himself with one hand and dragged sympathy from observing eyes. His other arm was pinned close to his side with many bandages. However, the young officer smiled, for there were others in the big London hospital suffering far greater glances than he.

Nevertheless it was a bit awkward unfolding the sheets of the "Daily Glass," and it was some time before the second hero got as far as the center section with its array of photographs.

Suddenly his blue eyes became steady with wrath. Two spots of flame leaped into the clear pallor of his cheeks.

His own photograph was looking back at him from the very middle of the "Daily Glass," and as a heading above in bold type were the words, "Interesting Engagement." Below were the usual lines so frequent in the English papers about a marriage having been arranged between so-and-so and thus-and-thus. The photograph of a lovely girl was coupled with his own, but Major Spencer was far too incensed at the stupidity of the press to cast so much as a glance at the feminine victim of the mistake.

His wrath was rising to a wonderful height when a troop of fellow officers, bandaged as to feet, arms, eyes or head, came in with loud congratulations, each carrying a copy of the "Daily Glass." The young V. C. took the unmerciful chaffing good naturedly and tried to explain that it was an error.

In consequence of the mistake, an hour or two later saw the waiting room of the "Daily Glass" a whirlpool, atmospherically, of various emotions. Major Spencer was the first to arrive. The expression in his eyes was flinty. He was reflecting on the score and more of telegrams and messages of congratulations that had flooded his hospital room following the announcement of the engagement with which the paper had credited him.

The two other occupants of the waiting room were a young officer in the flying corps and his fiancée. They were chatting pleasantly and had not observed Major Spencer nor connected him in any way with the error of printing over their own photographs. Instead of the couple being announced as engaged, the girl, Mildred Carter, was given the distinction of having been decorated by the king of the Belgians for bravery in attending the wounded under heavy fire, while young Captain Royce was given the honor of the V. C. and recovering from severe wounds.

"The door swung open to admit a fourth waiter. Her complaint against the 'Daily Glass' was, however, of the smiling variety.

It is not difficult to recognize the American girl in London. This fourth comer into the office had the charming independence of manner, the eyes aglow with interest in life and the smile seemingly ever poised on red lips and ready to offer itself in greeting. The uniform of the Red Cross nurse was wonderfully attractive as Beth Davis wore it.

She sat down in the only remaining chair and with American frankness of glance, took inventory of her companions. Naturally it was the major whom she first observed. Her quick eyes sent sympathy for the four wounds indicated by the tiny cold bits of band on his cuff and the blue band on his arm. Her eyes then traveled to the pale face and a quick glance of recognition sprang into them. She knew that Major Spencer was in the waiting room for the same purpose that she herself was there—to correct the error over his photograph.

She then glanced at the other two gentlemen and the soon guessed the entire situation. This second officer had no blue band and no tiny gold braids and the girl had no uniform on, so most certainly they were the engaged couple.

Luther Marsh, a veteran trapper, of near Union Mills, Carroll county, Md., met with an accident while in the act of looking after his traps before daylight. He found that one had been removed and upon investigation discovered that a large opossum had been trapped and had dragged the trap into a groundhog hole. Taking hold of the chain, he fired into the hole with his revolver, but the bullet taking a downward course, passed through the flesh and index finger of the left hand making a very painful wound.

TRADE WAR LOWERED PRICES

Readers of a local newspaper at Zerbet, near Wittenberg, Germany, were startled the other day to read the following announcement in the advertisement columns: "In consequence of business difficulties the clock and watch makers of Zerbet have decided to add to their business the sale of margarine." True enough a day or two later the shops were selling margarine, and so it was labeled with prices that were certainly somewhat lower than the inhabitants of Zerbet had ever before experienced, and was no less certainly well up to the standard to which they were accustomed, trade was soon very brisk. Most of the inhabitants treated the matter as a joke arranged for their benefit, but some of the grocers were not a little annoyed, and when they protested in due form the township was rather surprised that the joke did not come to an end. It is now explained that the sale is scarcely a joke, but a thrust on the part of the watchmakers at several dealers whom they accuse of unloyal competition. For some time past two or three dealers in margarine had been giving away watches as bonuses for the sale of several pounds of their produce, and they had refused to discontinue this sale when politely requested to do so by the watchmakers. Then the jewellers decided to sell margarine without the watches, and so doing managed to sell it cheaper than the original dealers.
